CITIZENS PICK FIVE FOR GARDINER'S JOB

President Will Be Asked to Cheose Commissioner From Among Quintet.

That long list of names of men men tioned for the District Commissionership, succeeding W. Gwynn Gardiner, whose term expired July 13, has again been lengthened. The Federation of Citizens' Associations has not only named five men, but appointed a committee to call on President Wilson and ask that he choose from these men the successor to Commissioner Gardiner.

The men whom the Federation are behind are W. B. Westlake, president of federation, and these four past presidents: Edward F. Colladay, William McK. Clayton, Daniel A. Edwards, and Charles S. Shreve. These men were suggested following a report, read at the meeting last night, from Jesse P. Crawford, chairman of the committee on civic activities, which has been considering possible candidates for the commissioner

Report by Committee. The committee reported that for the past forty-one years no President had appointed a District Commissioner who was a member of a citizens' association.

The two closing paragraphs of the resolution pertaining to the commissionership are given here: "The committee is of the opinion that the federation can perform n greater service for the people of the District at this time than to give its hearty support to this resolution and

Address by Kuts. At the meeting in the District ouilding last night Engineer Commissioner Kutz spoke on the zoning bill, which would regulate building in Washington. The entire zoning Md. system was explained by the Commis-

Full publicity of the income tax re turns of corporation and individual producers and distributors of foodstuffs, to enable the Government to single out all profiteers, is called for in a resolution offered yesterday by Senator Walsh of Montana.

If the Walsh resolution is adopted the proposed investigation of the high cost of living by joint Congressional committee would include access to all income returns with directions to annex in its report the profits of all persons or corporations who have had contractural relations with the Government since April 6, 1917.

While the Walsh resolution has nothing to do with the Senate District subcommittee now investigating profiteering in Washington, publicity of income returns would prove of inestimable value to that committee. The resolution also calls for a list of all he dollar-a-year men employed by the Government to whom Government contracts were issued, either as individuals or to concerns with which they were connected, together with the profits derived.

The resolution preamble sets forth that publicity of income returns is demanded by the public in order to stop profiteering, so the people might know who amassed fortunes when the Government was under duress of war. Efforts to obtain consideration of the Walsh measure were futile, however, and it was tabled.
